Aswath Damodaran INVESTMENT VALUATION: SECOND EDITION

My name is Aswath Damodaran, and I teach corporate finance and valuation at the Stern School of Business at New York University. I am a teacher first, who also happens to love untangling the puzzles of corporate finance and valuation, and writing about my experiences. As a result, I happen to be at the intersection of three businesses, education, publishing and financial services, that are all big, inefficiently run and deserve to be disrupted.

Aswath Damodaran - Wikipedia

Damodaran on Valuation Ideally, the price paid for any asset should reflect the expected cash flow on that asset?but there are two problems that arise in every valuation. The first is that estimating cash flows is an exercise fraught with uncertainty, and the second is that picking the right model to use in valuing an asset is seldom easy.
